Montgomery County Economic Development Corporation Announces Selection of Jorgenson Consulting to Lead Search for New President and CEO

Rockville, Md. — The Montgomery County Economic Development Corporation (MCEDC) announced the selection of Jorgenson Consulting, a national executive search firm specializing in non-profit, economic and community development organizations, to lead the search for MCEDC's next CEO. Todd Jorgenson, managing director and principal of Jorgenson Consulting, will oversee the search.

Brief description of the leadership position: The President and CEO is a dynamic, high-energy executive who is focused on working in collaboration with private and public sector stakeholders to realize a vision that enables Montgomery County, Maryland, to achieve its economic growth objectives. MCEDC seeks a leader who is passionate about driving sustainable job growth and aggressively pursuing the creation of effective partnerships and relationships throughout the County and the region.

The Search Committee met with Mr. Jorgenson on June 10 – 11 and will further develop an opportunity profile that will outline the experience and leadership characteristics of the desired candidate.

"We received many qualified RFP responses from search firms and interviewed several excellent candidate firms. Our choice of Jorgenson Consulting is intended to focus our CEO search on the most qualified candidates in this field," said Robby Brewer, Chair of the Search Committee and Incoming Chair of MCEDC.

For more information or to apply for the position, please contact Jorgenson Consulting at MCEDC@jci-inc.net.
